

ABSTRACT

Disclosed are methods for allele discrimination involving the use of rolling circle amplification (RCA) coupled with primer extension and utilizing exonuclease deficient polymerases to distinguish matched and unmated single nucleotide sites, such as in the case of a single nucleotide polymorphism (SNP).

1025010 00020000